The Journal of Race, Gender, and Ethnicity provides a scholarly forum that contributes and enriches the law students, the legal community, and the general public. The Journal is dedicated to cultivating intellectual conversation pertaining to different racial, gender, and ethnic groups and the effects of law, policy, and judicial decisions. This Journal holds live discussions in order to shape and strengthen our mission by sponsoring annual symposiums that feature presentations by legal scholars, judges and practitioners. The discussions bring a multitude of ideas and experiences through different viewpoints.
