
1994

Symposium Comparing New York and Federal Evidence Law: Introduction

Honorable George C. Pratt

Follow this and additional works at: <https://digitalcommons.tourolaw.edu/lawreview>

Part of the Courts Commons, and the Evidence Commons

Recommended Citation

Pratt, Honorable George C. (1994) "Symposium Comparing New York and Federal Evidence Law: Introduction," Touro Law Review. Vol. 11: No. 1, Article 3.

Available at: <https://digitalcommons.tourolaw.edu/lawreview/vol11/iss1/3>

This Introduction is brought to you for free and open access by Digital Commons @ Touro Law Center. It has been accepted for inclusion in Touro Law Review by an authorized editor of Digital Commons @ Touro Law Center. For more information, please contact lross@tourolaw.edu.

TOURO LAW REVIEW

Vol. 11, No. 1

TOURO COLLEGE

JACOB D.
FUCHSBERG

LAW CENTER

Fall 1994

SYMPOSIUM COMPARING NEW YORK AND FEDERAL EVIDENCE LAW

INTRODUCTION

Hon. George C. Pratt:

Welcome to this Symposium in comparing New York law and federal law on various evidence problems. My name is George Pratt. I am designated here as the “moderator.” I’m not exactly sure what that implies. I suppose that means I’m supposed to be somewhere in the middle of any conflicting views that are expressed. I think my major function here is largely as a traffic cop. My view on the problems of evidence is distinctly federal oriented, at least for the last 13 years or so since I have been on the federal bench. I am a great advocate of the federal rules of evidence. And I am very interested now in what’s happened in New York evidence since I was trying cases in New York courts. I think the best thing to do, at this point, is to go right ahead into the program.

